house was full of sorrowing friends or de deceased, gathered to pay a last tribute to the peaceful end of a busy, well-spent life. The services that were held beside the casket in the parlor were short and simple, but impressive. Rev. Dr. Bartlett, Mr. Galt's pastor for years, and Rev. Dr. Sunderland conducted the services. The black casket was almost hidden by a mass of handsome flowers and drooping ferns, and after the services it was borne down the wide, stone steps to the waiting hearse by the acting pallbearers, selected from among Mr. Galt's former employes. They were F. J. Mayer, a member of the firm, and the following clerks: Mesars J. J. Hurley, E. P. Anstrol, Jas. M. Allen, E. G. Marlow, S. T. Anderson, J. G. McQueen and Wm. Feldhams. In front of the casket walked the pall-bearers, Henry A. Willard, E. Francis Riggs, F. L. Moore, John W. Douglass, Gen. J. W. Foster, Francis B. Mohun, William E. Clarke and James L. Mrs. Pgrley's report showed that there were an average of six girls in the home every night. Mrs. S. D. La Fetra gave an interesting account of the vexatious trials the managers of the mission had in securing quarters. After being refused a number of houses by agents who did not care to rent a building to be used as a home for reclaimed or failen women, they went to ahouse in the "Division," in which a man had killed a woman and himself. They were supprised to find that not only had a dozen parties made application for the property, but even an offer of double the former rent bad been made for it. Cor., O. P. Macchill.

Bear Sig: Your Stroutin Water has certainly done me a great deal of good. For several years I suffered painful uitaess of libonmatic Good, for the cure of which I was induced to visit the principal springs and water cures of Europe, as well as many in this country, but without any positive relief. I have received nour benefit jiwa itisking straika Water than from all other courses, and I must record it as a very calcable remedial agent. As a table water and food solvent it is unsurpassed, and especially valuable in many forms of Dyspepsis.

Very truly yours.
